ROOSEVELT HOLDS COMMANDING LEAD IN PENNSYLVANIA

New York Executive
Given 93,128 to 73,012 for Al Smith in 5,917 of 8-181 Precincts in Democratic State Primary.

VOTES AVAILABLE ON 37 DELEGATES

Uncertainty of Candidates' Positions Leaves Division of Support Still in Doubt.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP)—
Franklin D. Roosevelt amassed a 20-000 lead over Alfred E. Smith tonight in the Pennsylvania presidential preference, as returns from two-thirds of the 8,181 districts were tallied up.

The vote from 5,917 districts gave Roosevelt 93,128 and Smith 73,012.

Hours after the polls closed last night, as Philadelphia returns gave Smith a 9,000 advantage, the two New York democrats stood almost even.

Today, however, the tallies from rural districts sent the Roosevelt vote soaring.

The outcome of the battle for the state's 76 votes in the democratic national convention still was uncertain.

Late tonight returns on only 17 of the 68 district delegates were available.

25 Claimed for Roosevelt.
Roosevelt managers claimed 25 of the 37 and conceded Smith 12.

After 12, Smith backers claimed 20 of the 37, leaving Roosevelt the other 17.

The uncertainty arises over the many categories into which the candidates for the convention positions were put.

Some ran definitely committed to vote for Roosevelt or Smith at Chicago.

Others agreed to abide by the outcome of the preferential vote in their individual districts.

NEW EXPOSURES SEEN BY NORBECK IN MARKET PROBE

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—
A new group of senate banking committee leaders wrested control of the stock market investigation from administration hands today and formulated secret plans for running down the many leads already developed.

A steering committee of five members, only one of whom—Townsend of Delaware—could be classed as an administration senator, took charge of the inquiry which has developed from a "bear hunt" into a broad investigation of stock market operations.

"We are just getting started in this investigation," Committee Chairman Norbeck announced after an hour's executive session of the steering group.

"We are working in secret on a program that will best develop the abuses of the system that all know to exist but are hard to prove," he said.

Norbeck's statement gave little light on the committee's action, but it was believed the group considered the selection of agents to examine stock exchange and brokerage records in New York.

Placing upon the large commercial banks a large share of responsibility for recent depression of security values, Chairman Norbeck threatened to bring their activities under the spotlight of the investigation.

Norbeck charged the banks with being part of "a board of directors over which some complaint is now made," and with failure to pass on newly expanded federal reserve credit, with a consequent forcing of liquidation.

The committee chairman announced another meeting would be held tomorrow which William A. Gray, committee counsel, would attend. Gray has been out of town several days.

Membership of the steering committee was completed just before the meeting today when Norbeck announced Townsend's appointment.

Other members, in addition to the steering committee, are Senators Couzens, republican, Michigan; Glass, democrat,
New York.

TAX RATE HIKES GIVEN APPROVAL OF SENATE GROUP

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—
The highest tax rates since the financial crisis of the World War were written into the new revenue bill today by a combination of republican and democratic votes in the senate finance committee.

This bi-partisan coalition doubled
the normal individual income levies, raised the corporation tax to new heights and accepted the high inheritance and gift taxes voted by the house.

The day's burst of speed carried the committee's work so near to completion that predictions were made of a report to the senate by Friday.

The committee also voted to make wage compensation payments to veterans subject to taxation.

Other results of the day were:
Increase in normal income taxes to 3 per cent on the first $4,000, and 9 per cent on the next $4,000.

The present maximum is 20 per cent.
The rates are 1-12, 3 and 5 per cent, respectively, on the first $2,000 of 2, 4 and 7 per cent, respectively.

New brackets were added to the graduated surtax schedule to provide for incomes in excess of $100,000.
The house had voted a maximum of 40 per cent on incomes over $100,000.

Reductions by the house in the personal exemptions from $1,500 to $1,000 for single persons and from $2,500 to $2,000 for married were approved. This adds a million or more taxpayers to the rolls.

The corporation income levy was raised from 12 to 14 per cent. The house voted 13-12 per cent. The

FRESH HOPE SEEN IN LINDBERGH HUNT

BURRAGE CONFIDENT THAT Obstacles Have Been Overcome in Parley.

HOPKINSON, N. J., April 27.—(AP)— Twenty-one words uttered today by Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the F. B. I., gave the nation a new reason for hope in the hunt for the kidnaper of the baby.

At this time we can state we have overcome a number of obstacles that have stood between us and our objective," said Rear Admiral Guy H. E.

Burrage, retired, spokesman for the F. B. I., after a long parley with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who had returned from a trip he had started Sunday. Curtis himself declined to discuss his journey, but announced the brief statement, to which Burrage would add only:

"That's all."

Economy Bill Saved By House Adjournment

Leaders Resort To Drastic Action After Insurgent Forces Lop $55,000,000 From Expected Federal Savings.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—
A menacing assault upon the economy bill by an unruly house was abruptly stopped tonight through the adjournment forced by party leaders to save the legislation from complete destruction.

Overridden by a powerful coalition of insurgents, the leaders resorted to the only ready means of saving the bill after $55,000,000 in savings had been stricken out of the expected $200,000,000 total.

Earlier in the day the party chieftains were overthrown by a vote of 219 to 164 that discarded the proposed drastic procedure by which they hoped to secure passage of the measure virtually unchanged.

Coming back for a night session,
the coalition appeared to gain strength. The first test on the economy bill failed by a vote of 185 to 93 and the leaders overruled the vote of 219 to 164 that discarded the proposed drastic procedure by which they hoped to secure passage of the measure virtually unchanged.

Although appeals were made by Chairman McDuffie and Representative Wood of Indiana, republican member of the economy committee, to retain the provision, the house appeared ready to eliminate it.

Again Representative Dyer sought to force a showdown. McDuffie leapt to his feet and demanded the house adjourn.

With hats and coats already in hand, the membership arose and left the chamber without waiting for further formality.

As the situation will stand when the house meets tomorrow at noon,

MILLS, MEYER HIT CASH BONDS PLANS

Treasury Secretary As-sails Payment in "Printing Press Money."

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—
Two administrative financial experts, accustomed to counting dollars in millions and billions, today heaped invective and ridicule upon plans for cashing the soldiers' bonus.

Secretary Mills stood before the house ways and means committee for 90 minutes uncompromisingly assailing proposals for making the $2,400, 000,000 bonus payment in what he called "dishonest dollars—printing press money."

Milder in manner, but no less earnest, Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, testified that "currency tinkering" would rock world confidence in the United States.

Both men, officers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and spokesmen for the administration, praised congress for the program approved this session, but warned that currency inflation would be an economic disaster.

TALMADGE ENTERS GOVERNOR'S RACE, HITS HEAVY TAXES

Cost of Government Basic Issue, Candidate Says.
Announcement of J. I.
Kelley Expected Soon.

BY R. E. POWELL.
Eugene Talmadge, who beat J. I.
Brown for commissioner of agriculture in 1923, and smashed the democratic political machine in Georgia at the time, Wednesday announced that he is a candidate for governor in the September primary.

Talmadge's announcement, made in a formal statement from his office, followed the visit of a delegation of friends from his home county of Telfair. They came, according to Mayor John S. Stamps, of Macon, "to put up the entrance fee and to let Gen.
Talmadge know his home folks want him to govern."

After his announcement had been given to the press, Talmadge notified Miss Stella Akin, of Savannah, that he was a candidate and forwarded to her the $250 which his Telfair friends brought with them. Two of the group,
M. A. Cameron, clerk of the court, and Mayor Stamps, flew from Telfair in order to be here in time for the meeting that preceded Talmadge's decision to get in the race.

Saying that he would disclose his platform later, the Talmadge statement included this paragraph:
"I cannot refrain from stating to you at this time that the basic principle on which all issues must rest this year is that our present taxes are too high. They are stifling business. In some instances they are confiscating property. The best way I know to reduce them is to reduce the expense of government."

The Talmadge announcement, while expected, was one more major political event in a week of feverish political activity which, old-timers said, had been equalled only once since the civil war—when there were two seats in the senate to be filled.

Incidentally, Senator Walter F.
George, term expires next March, disposed of rumors that he would not seek re-nomination. In a statement in Washington, he said:
"I will be a candidate for re-election."

FLANDERS DENIES SERIOUS CHARGES

U. S. Marshal Nominee Held 'Morally Unfit' by Justice Department.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)— Appearing before a subcommittee of senate judiciary committee, F. F.
Flanders, of Swainsboro, today entered a vigorous denial of the grave charges brought against his confirmation as United States marshal for the southern district of Georgia.

Senator Stephens, of Mississippi, chairman of the subcommittee, advised Mr. Flanders, now serving as a recorder of probate, that the department of justice had investigated his character and moral fitness for office, and had reported that he was "a professional politician engaged in selling postmasterhips in southern Georgia" and that he had been "committed to a sanitarium as a result of senile dementia."

Mr. Flanders, who is a native of Georgia, and who has been a member of the Georgia legislature, denied the charges and said he was "morally unfit" and morally unfit to hold public office."

Although represented at the hearing by his attorney, B. H. Sullivan, Flanders himself made a statement of the talking.

azine "straw vote," released Wednes-

VERDICT ON POOLE
DELAYED; PARLEYS
TO RESUME TODAY

Leadership of the Atlanta police force was in the balance Wednesday night as members of the police committee of council prepared to meet at 10 o'clock this morning for a showdown.

As the result of today's session a decision is expected as to the following possibilities:
1. That the committee will order a rehearing of the lengthy charges against Alderman Guy Coleman, first assistant chief of police and chief of detectives, so that Alderman Guy Coleman may vote on disposition of the Poole case.

2. That the committee will vote without Coleman and acquit Poole by a 2-to-2 vote, lacking a majority to convict.

3. That differences between Poole and Chief of Police James L. Beavers will be ironed out, Beavers to retire on a pension as planned; Detective Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant, now acting first assistant chief, to be made chief of police, with Poole remaining in the department as chief of detectives.

In sending for three and a half hours behind closed doors, members of the committee left the police station Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, giving the surprising announcement that "there has not been an official meeting of the committee —merely a conference."

Action on the Poole case was expected Wednesday night, the committee having set 11 o'clock Wednesday morning as the time for a meeting, at which the charges were to have been read and Alderman Coleman, who was disqualified from voting because of his absence from a session of the trial last week, insisted that he be given a voice in the committee's decision, and City Attorney James L. Mayson ruled that the only way Coleman could obtain a vote is for the committee to have the charges withdrawn and read, the entire case to be heard again, it was said.

Aldermen Ed Gilliam and Frank Reynolds, who are said to be ready to vote for the committee, insisted that the charges be read, insisted Wednesday that Councilman G.

New Pensions Bill Vetoed by President

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—
President Hoover's opposition to what he considers undeserved government payouts to veterans expressed itself again today as he vetoed a new pension bill which would have granted new pensions in addition to increasing allowances on existing law.

In sending the bill back to the house, he explained his reasons, citing a lengthy list of cases where he said ex-service men or their widows would receive undeserved compensation.

The measure, originating in the house, covered 367 cases where compensation had been denied because applicants had been unable to comply with added existing law.

Mr. Hoover said some cases were deserving, but there were so many others he considered undeserving that he felt compelled to disapprove the measure.

JUDGE TELLS JURY NOT TO CONSIDER STORY OF ASSAULT

Four Possible Verdicts Outlined; Veteran Attorney Employs All of Famed Pleading Gifts
in Dramatic Argument.

STATE DEMANDS 20-YEAR MINIMUM

"Four Defendants Killed Merely To Satisfy 'Ego' of Lieutenant Massie," Prosecutor Charges.

BY DAN CAMPBELL.
COURTROOM, HONOLULU, T. H.,
April 27.—(UP)—The case of four Americans accused of the second-degree murder of Joseph Kahahawai, half-caste alleged to have assaulted the wife of a naval officer, went to a jury of mixed races late today.

Submitting the case to the jury followed brilliant arguments by Clarence Darrow, famed Chicago attorney, who pleaded that the defendants be set free, and Prosecutor John Kelley, who demanded they be sent to prison for 20 years to life.

After these two finished arguments,
Judge Charles Davis read his instructions and the case was turned over to the seven Caucasians, two Chinese and three Hawaiians, who composed the jury.

Judge Davis told the jury that the fact that Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie, wife of defendant Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, allegedly had been assaulted by Kahahawai could not be considered by the jury as justification for the slaying of the half-caste.

The jury began deliberations at 4:25 p. m. (9:55 p. m. c. s. t., 10:55
P. M. e. d. t.).

Four Possible Verdicts.
In his instructions Judge Davis said they might return any one of four verdicts against those charged with shooting Kahahawai to avenge assaults upon Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie.

He said the defendants, Lieutenant Massie, Mrs. Grace Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, and A. O. Jones and E. J. Low, could be found guilty of murder, as charged, or of manslaughter, or not guilty by reason of insanity, or not guilty. The court said the jury might return individual verdicts against the defendants.

Mrs. Massie, in court for the second time since the trial opened, started weeping hysterically while the judge read his instructions.

As soon as the jury retired the judge ordered the courtroom cleared of all save newspapermen. He said he did this as a precaution against any outbreak.

Prosecutor Kelley was the last of the attorneys to speak and he battled scoured the defense and his tactics.

Kelley claimed the four defendants killed merely to satisfy the "ego" of Lieutenant Massie.

"There is no defense for them under the law," he said. "The defense claimed Massie was insane when he shot and killed Kahahawai, but I tell you he was sane."

Joe A. Moore, Milledgeville, Grand High Priest of Grand Chapter.

MACON, Ga., April 27.—(P)—Newly elected officers of the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Georgia, headed by Joe A. Moore, Milledgeville, grand high priest, were installed Wednesday by John W. Neilson, general grand high priest of the general grand chapter of the United States in the Grand Lodge building on Mulberry street.

The installation came late in the afternoon after prolonged balloting had extended the session of the morning into an after-lunch election. New officers who will serve with Mr. Moore are: Charles R. McCord, Macon, grand king; John R. Russell, Fitzgerald, grand scribe; Josiah T. Clarke, Augusta, grand treasurer; W. J. Penn Jr., Albany; William S. Simmons, Hapeville; F. A. Johnson, Atlanta, grand captain of host; B. P. Axon, Savannah, grand principal scribe; N. N. Johnson, Carrollton, grand royal arch captain; Paul H. Ponder, Rutledge, grand master of third veil; Jack Standifer, Blakely, grand master of second veil; T. W. Sewell, Newnan, grand master first veil; C. J. Owens, Newnan, grand sentinel.

Many ballots were necessary before a secretary was elected. The office had been held by T. G. Miller, who died during the year. J. A. Bishop, Atlanta, was appointed to serve temporarily. There was some question of combining the secretaryship with that of the grand council as Mr. Miller had held both offices. Mr. Penn, who received the election, will spend much of his time in Macon, he said, in pursuit of his duties.

O. Percy Taylor, Atlanta, retiring grand high priest, was presented the past high priest's jewel by Judge Warren Hill, Atlanta. Mr. Taylor was elected secretary of the grand council, royal and select masters at the Tuesday's meeting of that body.

"Trial Marriage" Evil Attacked By Bishop Reese at Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 27.—(P)—Ministers, parents and all sober-minded individuals who love God" were called upon today by the Rt. Rev. F. F. Reese, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia, to teach the sacredness of the marriage relationship to remedy the evil he said existed in present-day regard of marriage as a trial affair.

He deplored the fact that "many marriages are in fact, if not in intent, trial marriages," and said "it is no longer conceived as being holy matrimony, but merely a temporary arrangement contingent upon the superficial satisfaction which the parties find in it, to be dissolved on frivolous motives in order to try it again under the same conditions of experimentation."

Addressing the diocesan meeting here, Bishop Reese said the attack on this evil must begin in efforts to proclaim and teach the sacredness before God of this relationship.

Bishop Reese termed economic difficulties not a national problem but one that is worldwide. He said national pride and isolation must give place to a realization of the unity of mankind.

ROBBERY CONFESSIONS DENIED BY BANDIT DUO

MACON, Ga., April 27.—(P)—A. T. Wilson and J. M. Wilson, convicted bandits, this afternoon took the stand in Bibb superior court to repudiate confessions they had signed making the blame for the attempted robbery of the Mulberry service station here December 21.

Blanton P. Webb, young laundry truck driver, is the man who attempted robbery and a series of other robberies. R. S. Purser and A. H. Brown also are charged with the attempted robbery.

Wilson and Wilson, convicted for the abduction of Scott Rievore, Barnesville chief of police, several weeks ago, said they confessed the crime to take the blame off Webb and Purser.

They told the jury they had never heard of the robbery until approached by Webb and Purser in the Bibb county jail, where all four were incarcerated. They said the two men related the incident to them, told them what to say, and James W. Schell, counsel for Purser, wrote it out for them.

TALMADGE ENTERS GOVERNOR'S RACE

tion. I am wholly at a loss to understand the basis for reports that I would retire to private life. I expect to be a candidate to succeed myself in the primary in September."

There has been no opposition to George announced and little has been hinted.

For the unexpected term of the late Senator Harris, Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. and Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Americus, are candidates. The governor Monday named Major John S. Cohen, democratic national committeeman, to serve until the general election and Major Cohen took the oath of office in Washington at noon Wednesday.

Kelley Announcement Expected.

With Talmadge definitely in the race for governor, an announcement from John I. Kelley, assistant attorney-general and a leader in the Russell organization, was momentarily expected. A Kelley-for-governor club was formed at Lawrenceville Monday night.

H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, has entered the race and opened campaign headquarters in Macon. Dr. John R. Lewis, of Louisville, a kinman of the governor, has said that he would make the race.

Others are expected to announce, although Kelley, in the political group, is the man upon whom the anti-Talmadge forces are expected to center as the most available man to head off the commissioner of agriculture, Friends of Hal M. Stanley, industrial commissioner, were urging him Wednesday to get into the gubernatorial scrap. Stanley indicated that he was "very well satisfied" with his present post.

In closing his formal announcement of candidacy, Talmadge said:

"I was born and reared in Georgia. Four generations of my ancestors sleep beneath her soil. I love my people. The great ambition of my life is to try and lift them from the present dour of despair. There is a brighter day ahead."

Talmadge Statement.

His complete statement said:

"The office of governor is the greatest gift of the people of the state. The office carries with it the confidence of the people, their respect and esteem for the man who holds it, and also gives him more power than any executive in Georgia."

"Realizing the above, in reference to the governor's office, and after mature deliberation for the past three weeks, I have decided to announce for governor of the state of Georgia."

"For the past five years I have served the people of Georgia as commissioner of agriculture. If I did not believe that the farmers of Georgia and confidence in me I would not have the nerve to make this race."

"The moving consideration in my making this step is that I can serve the people of Georgia better as governor than I can as commissioner of agriculture."

"Not only are the farmers of this state in a chaotic condition, but all lines of business have felt this terrible depression."

"The welfare of labor, of manufacturing interests, commerce, schools, and every line of industry, rests upon the arm of the governor. The prosperity of this country depends upon farming being profitable to the farmer."

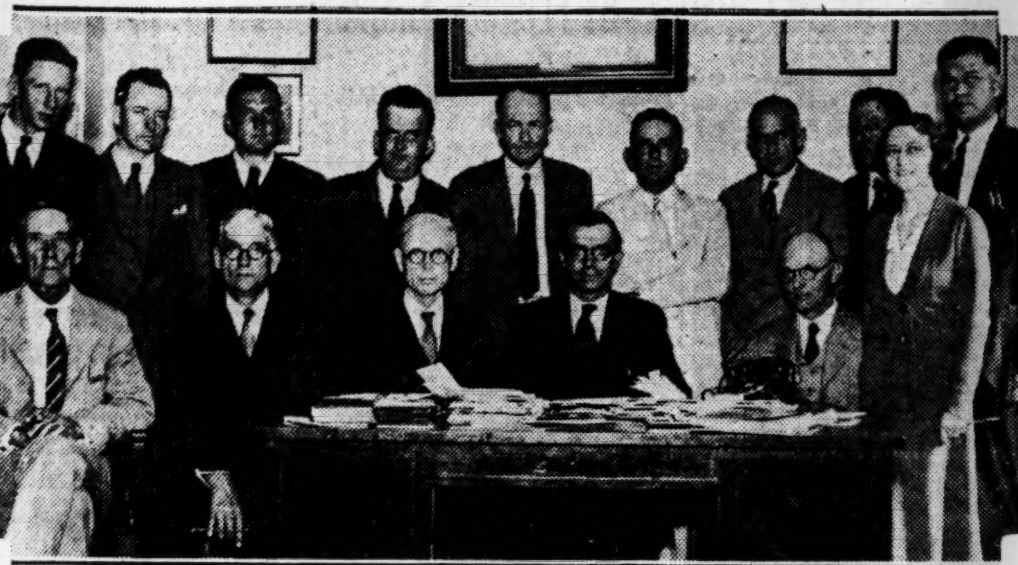

Business Needs 'Friend.'

"All lines of legitimate business need a fighting friend in the governor's office at this time. None will be slighted by me. All lines will receive my impartial attention."

"Later on in the campaign I will announce a platform definitely stating my stand on issues which I think vitally affect the welfare of this state."

"If elected governor of your state, will endeavor to carry out this platform with the same zeal and ardor with which I carried out the platform of agriculture."

When Talmadge Issued Announcement

Prominent citizens of Telfair, his home county, who visited Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, at his state capitol office Wednesday morning and told him they were ready to pay his fee of $250 to enter the race for governor of Georgia. Talmadge announced immediately afterward. Reading left to right, sitting, are W. A. Wilcox, naval stores operator; Max L. McRae, farmer; Judge Eschell Graham, of the Oconee circuit; Commissioner Talmadge; W. S. Mann, county attorney; Standing, left to right, Wallace Adams, turpentine dealer; Lamar Murdaugh, city attorney; A. B. Lee, road contractor; Z. D. Cravey, tax collector; M. A. Cameron, clerk superior court; John S. Stamps, mayor of McRae; George H. Harris, attorney; Mrs. Eva Graham Drew, of McRae, secretary to Talmadge, and John K. Whaley, attorney. on which I was elected commissioner of agriculture."

"I can not refrain from stating to you, at this time, that the basic principle on which all issues must rest this year, is that our present taxes are too high. They are stifling business. In some instances they are confiscating property. The taxes in this state must be reduced. The best way I know to reduce them is to reduce the expense of government."

"It is nearly five months before the people of this state will be called upon to cast their votes."

"I have confidence in the people of Georgia making the right choice when they hear the issues discussed and see us face to face."

"I was born and reared in Georgia. Four generations of my ancestors sleep beneath her soil. I love my people. The great ambition of my life is to try and lift them from the present dour of despair. There is a brighter day ahead."

An 'Unknown' in 1926.

Until the summer of 1926, when he launched his successful race for commissioner of agriculture against J. J. Brown, Eugene Talmadge was a comparatively unknown figure in Georgia politics. He had practiced law, farmed and been county attorney in Telfair county.

His flair for the unusual in politics took form when he came into office. He advocated, and the general assembly approved, changing the term of his office so that it would expire in January instead of June, thus cutting off six months of the first term to which he had been elected.

Clashes with the general assembly were a part of his fixed program. These culminated last summer when a move to impeach him was launched in the senate. This effort dwindled to a house resolution of censure and a "suggestion to the governor" that Talmadge be sued for $14,000 the senate found he had illegally spent to bolster the south Georgia hog market.

Advised Against Suit.

Governor Russell transmitted the "censure resolution" to Attorney General Napier, advising that official to take such action as he thought necessary to protect the interests of the state. Napier advised the governor that because of a former official ruling he did not think the state could recover on a suit.

In the closing days of the general assembly, after it had sharply cut the appropriation for the department of agriculture and prohibited Talmadge from writing editorials in the Market Bulletin, the agitation for cotton control legislation began. Talmadge was sent to the first Louisiana meeting by Governor Russell and subsequently was invited to address the general assembly of Texas. Upon his return from Texas, he was invited to address the Georgia legislature. An hour thereafter he was elected only to the resigning governor.

He espoused the Long no-cotton plan, contending that any other would avail nothing in the way of relief. Mass meetings were held in several counties of the state and at the capitol. Governor Russell consistently held to the belief that no form of legislation would effect the acreage curtailment sought. After the failure of Texas to adopt the Long plan, Talmadge took the position that nothing could be accomplished until 1933.

More recently, he has been involved in departmental litigation with Dr. J. M. Sutton, state veterinarian, who contends that he is entitled to direct the expenditure of $75,000 appropriated for the veterinary division. Suits, including a citation for contempt against Talmadge, which is to be heard Friday, are pending in Bibb superior court.

VERDICT ON POOLE DELAYED; PARLEYS TO RESUME TODAY

Dan Bridges, chairman, call the meeting to order so that a vote could be taken, but Bridges refused, it was said. Had a vote been taken it would have been two to two, acquitting Poole through lack of a majority vote to convict, it was said.

Should the committee force withdrawal of the pension application, it would mean that when the question of retrying Poole was advanced he said to the committee, with a laugh, "I suppose that means I will have to take my pension application."

Beavers has already withdrawn his application once, early in the year, before the charges were filed against Poole.

Compromise Reported.

Color was given to a compromise report when Lieutenant Sturdivant went into the offices of J. Jordan and Garner, where Chief Poole was closeted with Aldermen Gilliam and Reynolds. After a short conference, it was reported that the committee would withdraw its application for a pension, which is scheduled for a meeting of the pension board Saturday.

It had been announced previously that Beavers does not have the power to withdraw the charges, as they are now the property of the committee, and the committee had expressed itself as unwilling to drop the charges. City Attorney Mayson informed the committee Wednesday, however, that the charges could be withdrawn and refilled. If the charges are withdrawn and refilled, it is regarded as certain that the committee will attempt to work the courts for an injunction to prevent further trial of Poole, contending that the suspended first assistant chief will be placed in double jeopardy and that the police committee, having set Wednesday as the day for deciding the case, should have acted one way or the other.

Coleman Explains.

In explaining his absence of Friday night, Coleman said that he had been informed by the city attorney that the trial might continue, and he understood this to mean that his vote would be allowed.

Coleman's inability to vote on disposition of the case may prevent the committee from withdrawing the charges and refiling them, the members standing two to two, without Coleman's vote, as a majority vote would be needed for any action, "it was said."

Reversal of the case probably would require a week or more, it was said. The hearing was concluded Monday night when both sides closed and submitted the case to the committee without argument. Although the prosecution presented comparatively few witnesses, examination and cross-examination of Chief Beavers lasted through several sessions. The defense presented nearly 150 witnesses, mostly as to Poole's reputation as an officer for efficiency and courtesy.

John L. Westmoreland represents Chief Beavers, and Poole is represented by Carpenter, William Schley Howard, James A. Branch and H. A. Allen.

ECONOMY BILL SAVED IN HOUSE BY ADJOURNMENT

vote is to come on the McCormack amendment.

The bill was thrown into a maelstrom of uncertainty when the coalition forced it open to unlimited revision from the floor.

Taking advantage of unexpected support and a spectacular and confusing parliamentary tangle, the insurgents flatly rejected the ruling of party chieftains that only four amendments could be offered for each of the measure's ten sections.

Thus, the insurgent forces, bitterly opposed to some of the bill's provisions, made it possible to rewrite them without restraint so long as they can retain a majority of the membership.

The unusual situation placed the measure in a precarious position. Although some sort of economy bill undoubtedly will be approved, the legislation so painstakingly drafted by the special committee undoubtedly will be extensively revised.

The motion made by Representative Cannon to strike out the restriction on the number of amendments to be offered was approved overwhelmingly, without a record vote. Speaker Garner had ruled the unusual motion of Missouri democrat in order, despite numerous protests.

Finally a liberalized rule of procedure was adopted with 100 republicans and 110 democrats voting for it, for a total of 219, while 75 republicans, 88 democrats and one farmer-laborer, a total of 164, voted no.

The measure was agreed to after two hours of general debate followed by consideration of amendments and that the measure be attached to the $29,000,000 legislative appropriation bill carrying funds for the salaries of members of congress.

Chairman McDuffie, of the economy committee, opened general debate, saying:

"I doubt if there is anything so difficult to undertake as to withdraw the strong arm of the federal treasury from the hands of the people who have stretched out in so many directions."

"The people have, if you please, become used to the beneficence of Uncle Sam. They have grown used to the $29,000,000 in the past ten years. 'The country is demanding economy and we must effect it.'"

The house remained in session late in an effort to settle the issue over the McDuffie plan to cut federal wages 11 per cent, exempting $1,000, and the Hoover plan to grant four-fifths without pay and to cut allowances to government workers. Savings under the McDuffie plan are estimated at $67,000,000, while the chief executive's proposal is estimated to cut federal costs by $82,000,000.

The house rejected an effort to reduce salaries of senators and representatives from $10,000 to $9,000 for the fiscal year of 1933.

Representative Hardy, republican, Colorado, was author of the salary cut which was rejected. McDuffie opposed it on the ground the salary question should be considered as a whole and the proposed 11 per cent cut in the economy bill was reached.

Speaker Garner joined in the vote that rejected the amendment.

There remained little doubt that the McDuffie plan would be drastically revised, if not eliminated. The coalition headed by Representative Coker should be considered as a whole and the proposed 11 per cent cut in the economy bill was reached.

PUBLISHERS SCORE RADIO FEATURE USE

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—American newspaper publishers moved against use of newspaper features in radio advertising today, and unanimously passed a resolution condemning recent court action in the Aberdeen (S. D.) American-News case as "an encroachment upon freedom of the press."

After a general discussion of "appearances before the microphone" of creators of comic strips and other features whose popularity has been built up by newspapers, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association passed unanimously a motion urging members to stipulate when buying features that they be not used "in any advertising matter."

The committee on freedom of the press presented the resolution on the South Dakota case, which commended the expressed intention of the publishers of the American-News to "carry the case to the highest court in the land in order to maintain unimpaired the right of fair comment upon a judicial decision."

The paper was held in contempt by Circuit Judge J. H. Bottom for comment on a decision following exposure of alleged graft among local politicians.

The paper commented critically on the court decision on a case which ended in a suspended sentence, it was explained. The court ruled the newspaper publisher in contempt, holding that because the sentence was suspended, the case still rested with the court and therefore was not subject to comment.

The meeting voted to eliminate the customary fall convention of the association, on motion of Howard Davis, of the New York Herald-Tribune, vice president of the A. N. P. A.

The convention will close Friday.

Representative Parker testified that Flanders was honorable and upright, that he was a teetotaler and had given entire satisfaction as marshal of the southern district.

Chairman Stephens read a telegram sent to Senator Brookhart by Clint W. Hager, district attorney of the northern district, in which it was charged that Mr. Flanders had been involved in the sale of postmasterhips, was mentally unbalanced, and morally unfit to be marshal. Both Flanders and Representative Larsen denied these charges were true.

Representative Larsen said that Flanders "drank liquor at one time, but he never lost the respect of his fellow townspeople or myself, by doing so."

Senator Stephens said that his committee had been advised that Judge William H. Barrett, of Augusta, and District Attorney Charles L. Rolding, of Savannah, had protested against the nominee's confirmation, but Mr. Flanders explained that "both of these gentlemen have since changed their opinion so that they are now favorable to me."

In response to a question by Senator Hebert, of Rhode Island, the only other member of the committee present, Mr. Flanders said that he knew Ben Davis, negro republican leader of Georgia, "who is one of the biggest men in the republican party of Georgia." Flanders denied, however, that he had ever directed applicants for postmasterhips "to see Davis before your application can be acted upon."

Mr. Flanders was noticeably nervous while he was testifying in his own behalf, and at times his memory completely failed him.

Both Senator Stephens and Hebert questioned the witness very closely concerning his alleged sale of postmasterhips, but Flanders denied that "I ever sold a postmasterhip in my life." He admitted, however, that postmasters in his district had turned money over to him as contributions to the national and state committees "to pay delegates" fares to conventions. When asked how much money had been paid him, Flanders said he could not remember.

Mr. Sullivan had inserted in the record some hundred or more telegrams from judges, lawyers, doctors, businessmen, court clerks, bailiffs, etc., testifying to the nominee's fitness for office, and his "impeccable character."

"There isn't a lawyer in my district who will not send a note of commendation in my behalf to this committee," said Mr. Flanders.

Senator Stephens announced that the voluminous report on the nominee, which was submitted to him by the department of justice, was of a confidential nature and could not be revealed to either Flanders, his attorney or to the press. He said, however, that some of the charges which were the result of an intensive investigation by a department agent were "most grave and serious."

Flanders admitted he used to take a drink, but that it was not his custom to get drunk, nor had he been committed to a sanitarium because of drunkenness. "I had a complete nervous breakdown, but it wasn't from drink," he added.

Representative Larsen admitted that Flanders was "probably a professional politician, but not a corrupt one."

Senator Stephens said the evidence submitted would be carefully considered by his subcommittee, and an early report given to the full committee.

The first important vote Senator Cohen is expected to cast will be this week on the Hefflin-Bankhead senatorial contest from Alabama. He is scheduled to support the position taken by his democratic colleagues

CURRY SEEKS TO BAR PROBE REVELATIONS

Minority Trio of Hofstadter Group Appeal to Attorney-General.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—John F. Curry, chief of Tammany Hall, held a counsel of war with the minority members of the Hofstadter committee today to consider means of blocking the legislative investigation's path toward Mayor Walker.

Following that, three democratic members requested Attorney-General John J. Bennett Jr. for an opinion as to whether Counsel Samuel Seabury legally can withhold from them the records of testimony taken in private hearings. They were informed they must enter a formal request in writing.

Democratic leaders were understood to be seeking legal means to forestall Mr. Seabury from producing in public sessions such sensational disclosures as yesterday's testimony that the Fagel Motors Company, an Ohio cor-

Fund Cut May Make 906 Dry Jobs Unsteady

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP) David Burnett, commissioner of internal revenue, estimates that denial of 906 revenue agents would be necessary if the proposed 10 per cent reduction in appropriations for the treasury department is approved by congress and President Hoover.

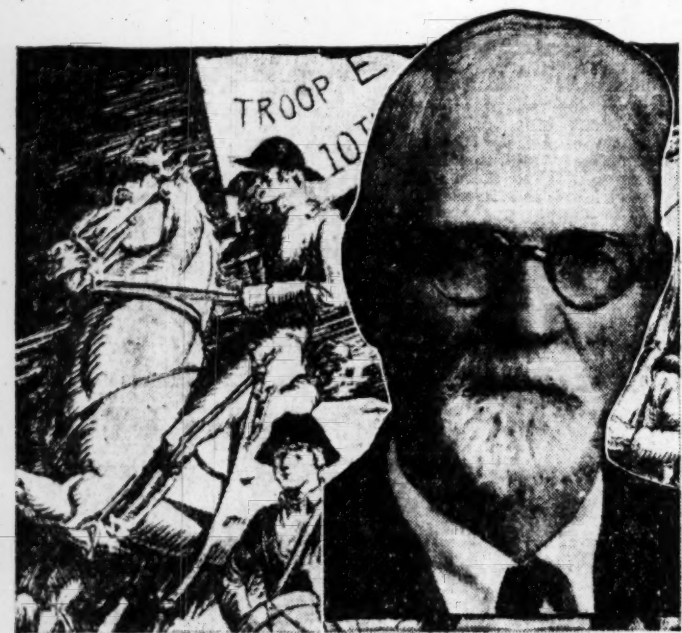

In a letter to Chairman Oddie, of the senate subcommittee in charge of the treasury supply bill, Burnett included the following tentative reductions:

Atlanta, 10; Baltimore, 27; Columbia, 5; Greensboro, 10; Jacksonville, 12; Nashville, 18; New Orleans, 10; Richmond, 11; Louisville, 8.

poration, contributed to Mayor Walker's first campaign fund and that State Senator John A. Hastings had been on the pay roll of the Equitable Bus Corporation at a salary of $1,000 a month.

None of the democrats participating in today's deliberations—Senators John J. McNamara, John J. Dunnigan, Louis A. Culliver and Irwin Steingart among others—would comment, but it was said no action would be taken until after an executive meeting of the Hofstadter committee Friday. An effort will be made to obtain an opinion from the attorney-general by that time.

W. L. BENNETT RECALLS HARD-RIDING DAYS OF CONFEDERATE CAVALRY

The hard-riding days of the Confederate cavalry are vividly recalled by Mr. W. L. Bennett, well-known retired railroad man residing at 951 Hemphill Ave., Atlanta, who was a member of Troop E, Tenth Georgia cavalry, when Forrest, Wheeler, Stewart and other great Confederates were planning and executing maneuvers that made the Confederate cavalryman a model for the armies of the world.

"It was often hard fighting night and day with little to eat at times," said Mr. Bennett, but we had good times, too.

"I am going to the reunion at Richmond in June. I didn't expect to get there, for I was in such bad shape physically I could hardly go to town and back on the street car, but I've gotten rid of my stomach trouble and weakness, and today I walked two miles to town and then walked around town without being tired out. I feel so fine it reminds me of when Troop E got a chance to do a little sky-larking between brushes with the enemy. We just didn't seem to get tired then.

"I've always believed in giving credit where it belongs and I've got to thank Thor's Vitamin Compound, this new vitamin, iron, and copper medicine we hear so much about, for the way it got rid of my trouble and restored my strength. They seem to have at last found a medicine that does what a man needs. I was almost too weak to get around, had no appetite whatever, and suffered every day from indigestion that felt like a lump of iron in my stomach. I had to take pills every night, and even then my stomach stayed full of gas that kept me feeling weak and miserable, and I was so short of breath I could hardly walk a block. My whole system seemed to be broken down and full of toxic poison.

"I tried everything that was recommended to me without getting my health back and when Thor's Vitamin Compound was recommended to me I was glad to try that, too. It is without a doubt the finest medicine I ever saw. My stomach trouble is all gone and I have such a fine appetite I'm sometimes afraid I'll eat too much. I never have to take laxatives now, and as for my strength—well, as I said, I walked two miles to town and then walked all over town without being tired out. And that walk, I might add, was to buy two bottles of Thor's Vitamin Compound to give to friends of mine who need it like I did. I'm confident that it will fit them just like it did me. I am eighty-five years old, and my friends all know what bad shape I was in. They are as surprised as I am that any medicine could do what Thor's Vitamin Compound did for me. Yes, I'm going to Richmond to meet the boys feeling finer than I have in years."

Thor's Vitamin Compound is the new scientific treatment containing vitamins, iron, copper, and other ingredients which increase the strength-giving red corpuscles of the blood, correct digestive disorders, tone the intestinal tract, and strengthen the nervous system naturally by improved circulation and increased metabolism. Hundreds of people are finding relief from impoverished blood, malnutrition, poor appetite, indigestion, bilious attacks, auto-intoxication, sluggish elimination, and a weak, anemic condition through this remarkable new treatment. Thor's Vitamin Compound may be obtained at all drug stores. It costs but fifty cents.—(adv.)

AMERICANS IN FRANCE AVOID DOUBLE TAXATION

International Pact Signed To Effect Huge Saving to Business Abroad.

BY JOSEPH H. BAIRD.
WASHINGTON, April 27.—(UP) The United States and France today concluded a convention on "double taxation" of American firms with branches in France which the state department estimates will save them millions of dollars.

Signature of the convention by Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, and Ambassador Walter E. Edge in Paris brought victory to a diplomatic campaign the American embassy in Paris has waged since 1930.

American officials regarded the convention as a clean-cut acceptance by France of the principles of taxation abroad that the United States has insisted upon.

The primary benefit of the agreement to American corporations, as interpreted by the state department, will be that in the future they can avoid taxation by France of a fraction of the profits they make in the United States. This is done now, although some American firms have contested the legality of the practice by suits in the French courts.

Under the previous French tax system, branches of American firms in France paid an ordinary corporation tax of 15 per cent and a "distribution tax" (on income from securities) of 16 per cent on all dividends paid to their parent companies in the United States.

In addition, France claimed the right to lay a 16 per cent tax on whatever part of the French dividend of an American company that might be considered as originating in its French branch. This fraction of profit was estimated on the basis of the ratio of assets existing between the French branch and the American parent concern.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Although poor quarterly earnings statements have accentuated the gloom in the iron and steel industry, the immediate outlook is for further improvement, said Iron Age today.

Steel output, production averaged 22.2 per cent in the preceding week and 21 per cent two weeks ago, the review states, adding that a further expansion of motor car output next month is a certainty.

Structural shops are now figuring on fully 200,000 tons of work and expect about 100,000 tons to be placed within the next month, the review asserted.

A second wage cut by the steel industry seems inevitable, it is stated. The chief consideration deterring such action is the fear that a cut might tend to defeat the efforts of producers toward stabilizing prices.

Roosevelt Proves
W. and L. Choice
as Party Nominee

LEXINGTON, Va., April 27.—(UP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the democratic nominee for president in 1932, if the usual prophecy of Washington and Lee University students is correct.

Roosevelt was nominated on the ninth ballot at a mock democratic convention today after Newton D. Baker, on the eighth ballot, had shown amazing strength, when California, Louisiana and Texas swung their votes to the New Yorker's side.

In four out of five mock conventions, the Washington and Lee "conventions" have foretold the actual course of historical and unofficial observers from both parties were present today to watch the balloting.

Owen D. Young showed as a strong contender for the nomination on the eighth ballot, on which he had 108 votes.

Ruth Bryan Owen
Favors Dry Law Vote

MIAMI, Fla., April 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, elected as representative in congress from the fourth Florida district, today defined her stand on the prohibition question as not being opposed to a referendum vote on a change in present laws.

Her statement, issued before she left to return to Washington, said: "The referendum is a basic right under the American form of government, and I never have, and do not now, oppose a referendum on any public question."

"However, in event that a referendum is taken on prohibition, the people must be given the chance to express their will by direct vote."

Those who propose the referendum must be prepared to set clearly before the people the alternatives they offer in place of the eighteenth amendment.

COL. L. K. WILLIAMS HEADS RESERVE GROUP
PITTSBURGH, April 27.—(AP)—Colonel L. K. Williams, fourth corps area, of New Orleans, today was named president of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States.

Major General Harry L. Gilchrist, chief of the chemical warfare service, addressed closing sessions of the association's convention.

500 Atlanta Firms Assisting In Red Cross Roll Call Drive

The Junior League booth in the Red Cross roll call, located on the ground floor of Rich's, Inc., was the scene of enthusiastic activity Wednesday. In the picture above are seen (left) Miss Josephine Richardson, in charge of the booth, enrolling Mrs. Oscar Davis. Both are members of the Junior League.

More than 500 Atlanta firms and business organizations are now co-operating with the Atlanta Red Cross in its annual roll call of members in the Atlanta and Decatur chapters, by establishing committees with their own organizations to receive memberships, Frank Carter, general chairman of the roll call effort, said Wednesday afternoon.

While the majority of these organizations, according to Mr. Carter, are just beginning to get under way, several notable exceptions were announced Wednesday, among them the Retail Credit Company, Georgia Savings Bank, Brown Bass Company and Fidelity and Deposit Company, all of whom have not only completed their organization, but have reported that every employee of the several organizations have "answered" the roll call, and that the entire personnel are members for the forthcoming year.

Three departments of the Fulton county courthouse, the ordinary's office, the tax collector's office and the office of county treasurer also have reported 100 per cent memberships, and Thomas Lewis, chairman of the committee for the courthouse, expressed confidence Wednesday that the remaining offices will have reached 100 per cent membership before the conclusion of the roll call.

More than a hundred employees of the First National bank, and approximately the same number from the Federal Reserve bank have been reported by Clyde Williams, chairman of the banks' committee, in addition to the Georgia Savings bank.

A considerable amount of attention has been attracted to Red Cross flags, which are being flown from a number of public buildings, business houses and hotels as a means of attracting attention to the roll call. Red Cross flags are now being flown from the state capital, the city hall, the Fulton county courthouse, the Capital City Club, the Atlanta Gas Light Company, Rich's, Davison's, Muses, the Biltmore, the Georgian Terrace, Henry Grady hotel and the flagstaff at Five Points.

The roll call will be continued for the remainder of the week, and it is expected that through this annual effort, membership in the Atlanta chapter will reach more than the 10,000 sought.

ECLIPSE CONFRONTS
CROONING CRAZE
AS WORDS RETURN

BY DALE HARRISON.
NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—The croon craze is confronting eclipse, and the crooners may have to go back to singing the words.

There is a swing from sotto voce to the more robust timbre, and a demand for tunes in heartier vein. The sentiment is for more daws to come up like thunder and less like buttercups.

The Messrs. Columbo and Crosby, front-rank crooners who can take a simple "la-dee-dum-do" and tie fluttering hearts into forget-me-knots, are both finding the croon market a bit off from its one-time high. Mr. Rudy Vallee also has discovered that the demand for intimate vocalization is not what it used to be.

Vallee, who has been called the first of the crooners but who denies he is a crooner at all, is reported by various Broadway minders-of-other-people's-business to aspire to politics. The lowdown on the situation, the whippersnays say, is that Vallee would like nothing better than to be elected to congress. Vallee himself has not commented on this. The high has been pointed to by some as emphasizing his qualifications for political office.

There is an unconfirmed rumor that if the croon goes out, it will be succeeded by the yodel. Well informed persons said today, however, there was no occasion for any immediate alarm.

RAILROAD EMPLOYEES FIGHT CONSOLIDATION
WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Railway workers threatened their attorney, J. A. Farquharson, today asked the interstate commerce commission to turn down the plan for a four-system consolidation of eastern railroads.

Farquharson, arguing before the entire commission against the proposal of the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Baltimore & Ohio, the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroad, asserted railroad consolidation at this time would only add to unemployment.

JUDGE IS ASSAILED BY FLORIDA JURORS

Presentments Playing State
Official and Jurist Made Public.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 27.—(AP)—Two presentments by the Duval county grand jury—one called "scurrilous and a slander on this court" by Judge Dewitt T. Gray when first presented, and the other originally described by the judge as containing "serious charges against the assistant state attorney"—were made public in open court here today by Judge Gray.

One, dated April 16, said the grand jury "feels it has been needlessly hampered, confused, delayed and discouraged in the performance of its duty." This feeling, the jury said, was occasioned by its being discharged before it had completed its work, by the charge of the court, by delay in recalling it into session and by a "complete lack of co-operation."

The other, dated April 19, charged that Sam S. Wilson, assistant state attorney, appeared before the jury April 18, represented himself as an "agent or messenger" of Judge Gray and declared Judge Gray threatened to "indict every member of the grand jury who voted for a certain presentment... on April 18."

It continued with a charge that Wilson, "speaking awfully as the agent or messenger for said Judge Dewitt T. Gray, did openly say and insist that members of the grand jury disclose to him the individual names of those who voted for 'the presentment.'" It also charged Wilson "did state that said judge or court would indict such grand jurors as voted for said presentment on a charge of libel."

Judge Gray, in a prepared statement to the jury which included the two presentments, today denied the charges in full, and said "it is almost incomprehensible to think that any grand jury in this court would make any such charge as this against a judge of any court."

Nonagenarian Chorine Defends Burlesque Show as Man Blushes

NEW YORK, April 27.—(UP)—A 93-year-old chorus girl came to the aid of the harassed Billy Minsky, whose burlesque shows in 42d street are threatened with extinction by reformers, by testifying to the general cleanliness of such productions as "Fanny Free, From Wheeling" and "Ellen Dover, From Aiken."

The nonagenarian chorine, who danced at Tony Pastor's years ago when hips were in style, is "Mother" Addie Elms. She told License Commissioner James F. Geraghty she thoroughly enjoyed the shows, and that she had never seen anything "immoral."

Thereupon the Forty-second Street Improvement Association, which hopes to drive Minsky out of business, put on its accountant, George A. Moeller, 45, and married, to testify to the amount of skin displayed by the Minsky girls.

"Were you morally affected by the display?" he was asked.

"You wouldn't want to know... my secrets, would you?" Moeller replied, blushing. Upon being pressed for a direct answer, the accountant admitted that "several of the girls looked inviting."

"But don't you see thousands of girls on the streets that look inviting?" the lawyer persisted.

"Yes, indeed, but they are not dressed—ah—exactly the same way," Louis Fehr, one-time dramatic critic, aided Minsky by declaring the semi-nudity "enjoyable" and remarking that the tableaux, ballets and dances were not a whole lot different than those in the reviews for which New Yorkers pay $8.50.

JACOB N. HIRSCH TAKEN BY DEATH

Prominent Wholesale Cigar Dealer Was Ill for Only Few Days.

Jacob N. Hirsch, 58, for many years a prominent wholesale cigar dealer, died Wednesday afternoon at the residence, 1274 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., following an illness of only a few days. Funeral services will be announced later.

For many years Mr. Hirsch was conspicuous in the business life of Atlanta as the head of the firm which bore his name. His business connections made him known to businessmen over the entire south.

Mr. Hirsch is survived by his wife, three sons, Sam Hirsch, Lewis Hirsch and Harold D. Hirsch; three brothers, David L. Hirsch, of Charlotte, N. C.; Isadore Hirsch, of Savannah, and Louis W. Hirsch, of Atlanta, and two sisters, Mrs. Adolph Hirsch, of Savannah, and Mrs. Henry Lang, of Atlanta.

Sam H. Greenberg & Company, are funeral directors.

SAMARITAN CONTEST WINNERS ANNOUNCED

The West End Baptist church, Mrs. J. J. Hemperly, chairman, won first prize and $40 in The Constitution's Good Samaritan Contest. Campaign contest for the week ending on April 23, it was announced on Wednesday.

Second prize of $25 went to the Moreland Avenue Baptist church, Mrs. J. G. Street, chairman.

Third prize and $23 were won by St. Anthony's Catholic church, Mrs. L. W. Pierce, chairman, and Fourth Prize, $12, was won by the Hills Park Baptist church, Mrs. J. H. Fuller, chairman.

Over 15,000 votes were cast and the standing of the entrants for the final prize was materially changed, it was stated.

A surprising feature of the campaign, it was pointed out, was the heavy vote cast by more than 30 organizations, one vote counting for each penny spent for purchases and paid on accounts.

Atlanta has one of the four or five leading airports of America, and in time will profit as much from aviation as she has in the past from the railroads, according to Willie E. Haviland, Atlanta representative of American Airways, Inc., who was the guest speaker at Wednesday's luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Real Estate Board at the Piedmont hotel.

"Atlanta will profit immensely by the South American air travel that will come through Candler field on its way to the western markets," he said. "Air travel will bring new people here, and in the wake new business. Aviation has brought this city within a one-day trip of the important cities of the country. Los Angeles today is no farther west than St. Louis was a few years ago, as a result of quicker air-line travel."

He invited the real estate men to attend the dedication next Saturday of the new aviation building at Candler field.

L. Engle Mack, head of the loan department of Hays Howell & Dodd, which represents several insurance companies handling real estate mortgages, discussed the loan situation.

"The important insurance companies are very much pleased with the status of their loans in Atlanta," he said. "However, all the companies are going to handle their loans with more care in the future. They are going to require moral and financial standing on the part of the borrower as well as property security."

TO BE PRESENTED AT GRANT FIELD

War-like maneuvers will thrill Atlantans Friday night at Grant field when military and naval forces at Georgia School of Technology hold their annual review.

The review will begin at 7:30 o'clock and will be concluded in time for the participants to reach the Shrine mosque, where a brilliant military-naval ball will be held, at 10 o'clock.

A large number of company and individual prizes have been provided by patriotic organizations for the winners in the Grant field maneuvers. Tech musicians will furnish martial band music, and crack outfits will demonstrate the results of months of preparation.

Major O. H. Longino is in charge of the military feature, while Captain J. J. London is in charge of the naval part of the review.

"The general public is welcome to Grant field for the review," said Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Tech. "In fact, we will welcome the public with open arms."

A Tech orchestra will play for the military-naval ball.

ATHLETES ADVERTISE
BRAND OF CLOTHING

The Schwob Company, of Columbus, Ga., one of the largest manufacturers of men's clothing in the south, with local stores at 91 Peachtree street, N. E., and 177 Mitchell street, S. W., has injected an unusual touch in their new advertising campaign.

Part of the campaign is made up of actual photographs of well-known southern athletes wearing Schwob suits.

The first sports figure to appear is "Pat" Barron, popular Georgia Tech football star and the last of the famous line of "Barrons." Pat has been caught in a perfectly natural pose wearing a lightweight spring suit made by the Schwob Company. This is to show how Schwob suits look on the average man—on people you know.

It is the belief of the Schwob Company that men are interested in knowing what type of people wear a brand of clothing. The Schwob Company has been manufacturing clothing in the south for the past 20 years, and operates 21 retail stores in various southern cities.

FIRE BOARD NAMES
BERRYHILL CAPTAIN

W. B. Berryhill, member of the Atlanta fire department since 1904, Wednesday afternoon was elected captain to succeed Captain George W. Dyer, who retired several weeks ago on pension.

The fire board also elected W. H. Jolly and P. J. Donnelly as firemen. Berryhill has been assigned to station No. 19, for the past several months and his elevation was sponsored by administration leaders.

Cool Weather Today, Von Herrmann Says

Fair and continued cool weather today is in store for Atlanta, according to C. F. von Herrmann, local prognosticator of the elements. The temperature will range from 42 degrees this morning to approximately 68 degrees this afternoon, Mr. von Herrmann said.

Wednesday the temperature climbed from a 45-degree low in the early morning to 62 degrees in the afternoon. The chilly winds that invaded Atlanta were caused by a high pressure area in the northwest, Mr. von Herrmann stated. Fair skies will prevail today, he said.

A meeting of the fifth district democratic executive committee will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the state capitol to formulate rules for the conduct of the congressional primary which will be held on the same date as the statewide primary, September 14.

A call for the meeting was issued Wednesday by Judge Shepard Bryan, chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, secretary. Although he has not made formal announcement, Robert Ramspeck, incumbent, is expected to be a candidate to succeed himself in the primary.

SEWER BODY BACKS TRUNK EXTENSION

As members of the sewer committee of council Wednesday afternoon recommended that the finance committee provide a fund of $50,000 for extension of the Los Angeles avenue trunk sewer from its present terminus to the Peachtree creek disposal plant, officials began a study of a new chlorinating process to relieve the intolerable sewage conditions in various sections of Fulton county.

J. R. Murphy, of the Chlorine Institute, New York, was in Atlanta in conference with sewer officials in an effort to minimize inconvenience to property owners and also to relieve the contamination of the creek. A survey is in progress through which proponents claim that about 80 percent of the contamination can be eliminated.

The sewer committee resolution contemplates extension of the Los Angeles trunk line from the intersection of Clear Water creek and Peachtree to the Peachtree creek plant, but according to Henry Benson, sewer engineer of the construction department, will only aggravate the nuisance at that point unless other steps are taken to correct the situation which exists there.

Extension of the lateral sewer in Wheeler street from near Echo to Julian streets also was recommended by the sewer committee.

In charge of the performance are Harry M. Root, president of the chanters; Frank A. Cundell, dir.; W. A. Aichel, accompanist, and H. T. Bledsoe, publicity chairman. The program will consist of negro spirituals, and both popular and classical numbers. J. Thomas Hoffman and H. Edward Bray will be the vocal soloists on the Rivers school presentation. A charge of 50 cents will be made for admission.

ATLANTA U. WILL HOLD EXERCISES ON CAMPUS

Large Crowd Anticipated
for Dedication of Institution's $300,000 Library.

To accommodate the largest possible number of persons at the dedication of the new Atlanta University library on Saturday afternoon, the exercises will be held on the campus adjoining the new building, it was announced Wednesday. A large platform for the speakers and the Morehouse-Spelman chorus has been built, and loud-speakers will be installed to carry afar the voices of United States Senator Frederic C. Wolcott and other speakers of the afternoon. The program will begin at 2:30 o'clock, and the general public is invited, the university officers announced.

The Saturday afternoon program will be preceded by an academic procession which will form at Rockefeller hall, Spelman College campus, at 2 o'clock and march to the outdoor auditorium on the Chestnut street campus of the university. President John Hope, of Atlanta University, will preside. In addition to Senator Wolcott the speakers will include Dean Sage of New York city, who will accept the gift of the library from the general education board, and James Weldon Johnson, for the Fisk University faculty, who will speak for the Atlanta University alumni. The Scriptures will be read by President Harvey Warren Cox, of Emory University. Howard Thurman, of the Spelman faculty, will deliver the prayer of dedication, and President James Ross McCain, of Agnes Scott College, will pronounce the benediction.

The Morehouse-Spelman chorus and the Morehouse College Glee Club, both under the direction of Professor Kemper Harrell, will give an elaborate program of music, including a group of negro spirituals.

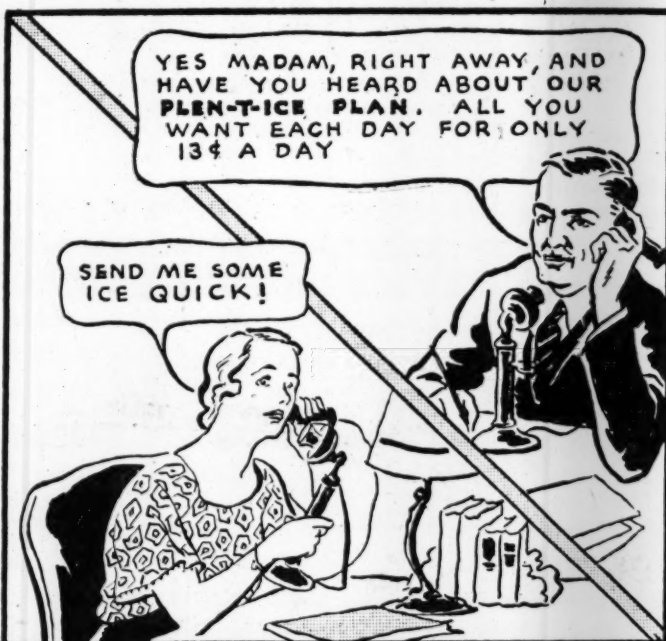

Very Bad Breaking Out on Child's Scalp. Cuticura Healed.

"My little boy had a very bad breaking out on his scalp. He used to scratch his head and I noticed red pimples at the edge of his hair. Later it broke out in blisters and when he scratched it caused the trouble to spread, also sore eruptions. His hair was lifeless and dry, and he was very fretful. The trouble lasted about four weeks. "I started using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they seemed to stop the irritation, and in about three weeks he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. S. F. Stubbs, Rt. 4, Abilene, Texas.

Tick On Runs Second to Springsteel in Three-Year-Old Debut CRACKERS BEATEN 15 INNINGS BY BARONS

TICK ON BEATEN IN FIRST START BY SPRINGSTEEL

Mad Frump Third at Havre de Grace; Cattail Wins.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 27.—(AP)—Tick On, one of the two favorites for the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, lost his first start as a three-year-old today, when he was thrashed by S. W. Labrot's Springsteel, another Derby hopeful, in the Shreveport stakes.

Mad Frump, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's candidate for three-year-old honors, also making his first start of the year, was third in the mile-and-70-yard classic trial, which took interest from the Aberdeen stakes, $10,000 added feature of the day's program.

Cattail, William Ziegler's two-year-old, stepped the four-and-a-half furlongs of the Aberdeen in 55 seconds to beat Labrot's Paint Box and M. Lowenstein's Cruising to win $13,300 and pay his backers $19.40 for $2.

Approximately 12,000 race fans saw Tick On's defeat, after he acted badly at the post and got away to a bad start in sixth position, just behind Springsteel. During the early running he was in close quarters and never got a chance until they were in the back stretch, with Portman in the lead.

Jockey Pete Walls had Tick On on the rail when he couldn't run, but held him there while R. Leishman took Springsteel to the outside. Midway of the turn, Springsteel moved up with the leader and then took the lead.

Turning into the back stretch, Tick On almost jammed into the leaders, and had to be taken up so sharply. Walls was almost thrown. The Loma colt closed gamely when there was racing room in the stretch, and gave the winner a run for first money, but could not overtake the lead and was beaten by a length.

Mad Frump was with the leaders all the way until he acted badly at the post and got away to a bad start in sixth position, just behind Springsteel. During the early running he was in close quarters and never got a chance until they were in the back stretch, with Portman in the lead.

Springsteel paid his backers $10.20, after Tick On had been made the odds-on favorite and paid $1.50 to $1.00 and $2.25 to $1.50. The time was 1:44.25.

Tick On Now Rated Second Choice.
H. THOMAS H. NOONE.
NEW YORK, April 27.—(UP)—Informed by the United Press that the Loma stable's Tick On had been beaten by S. W. Labrot's Springsteel at Havre de Grace today, Thomas J. Shaw, nationally known turf commissioner, immediately issued his future book prices on the Kentucky Derby, making C. V. Whitney's unbeaten filly, Top Flight, a 3-to-1 favorite.

"Make Tick On equal second choice with Burning Blaze now at 6 to 1," said Shaw after learning the details of the defeat of the colt that had heretofore ruled equal choice with the Whitney miss at odds of 5 to 1. "But the price of the other leading candidates, also."

Top Flight worked a mile at Jamaica today in 1:40.15, which impressed Shaw favorably as much as any of the colts who saw the trial. Asked what he thought of Top Flight's run, the general commissioner laughingly remarked, "Three to one's a bargain on her."

Top Flight is scheduled to start in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica on Saturday, and her performance in that race will naturally affect her quotation in the Derby which will be run the following week-end.

Tick On can creditable race to-day, overcoming interference and finishing gamely, but the fact that he was beaten cannot be overlooked. The fact that Springsteel remains a 100 to 1 chance after his triumph over the son of the War of the Roses casts a further shadow over his prospects for the prized Blue Grass classic.

Smith To Attack Campbell's Record

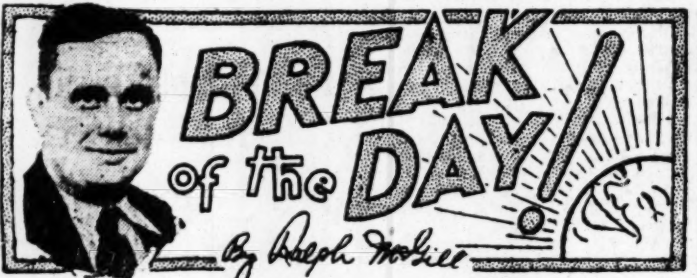

WELLINGTON, N. Z., April 27.—(AP)—Norman (Wizard) Smith, Australian racing car driver, said today he would make an attempt Saturday at Nineteen-mile Beach of the one-mile and five-mile records held by Sir Malcolm Campbell, of England.

Officials will leave for the beach tomorrow to make preparations for the attempt.

Walker Favorite, Kingfish Confident

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP)—Mickey Walker will be the favorite when he climbs into the Chicago stadium ring Friday night to meet King Levinsky, but the Kingfish is so confident of victory that he has decided to pass up an offer to box in Australia.

The King wants to be around to challenge the winner of the heavyweight championship battle between Max Baer and Jack Sharkey next June, and he figures a victory over Walker will qualify him. Walker and Levinsky were down for last strenuous training maneuvers today. Walker weighed about 171, and Levinsky 194. Advance ticket sales reached $10,000 today, according to Billy Burke of the stadium boxoffice force.

Stribling and Babe Ruth Consider Golf Jobs

Until this business of going down to the underside of the world and fighting in Australia bobbled up on the Stribling horizon, W. L. Stribling was considering the business of being a golf professional. He may yet, when the fighting profession is at an end.

It was rather odd that two of the nation's better known athletes should be flirting, so to speak, with the same idea. It was not long ago that George H. (Babe) Ruth, while shooting well down in the 70's in Florida, announced that he was looking forward to becoming a professional golfer, paying special attention to exhibitions, when he was through, or about through, with baseball.

Of the two, I think W. L. Stribling's idea was the more practical one. He was to enter George Norrie's golf shop, at the Idlehour Country Club at Macon, and learn the pro business as it should be learned, as an apprentice. And he would have had a great teacher in Norrie.

Stribling shoots consistently in the 70's. Add to that a golf shop apprenticeship in the art of golf club manufacture, the maintenance of a golf course and a dozen other tasks, and he would have been on the way. Stribling should be a good teacher if he cares to take up the golf idea again, once the wars are done in the shires of Australia.

Babe Ruth's idea is far less sound. The golf exhibition business isn't so good. And won't be so good for some years. The word from many of the tournaments is that first-rate golfers, fellows whose names are high on the lists, are playing with the railroad money to the next tournament in the prize money and needing to be won. A great many people turn out to cheer Babe Ruth in his baseball drama each day. Only a few of the curious would be lured out to watch him play golf exhibitions.

NO EASY TASK.

Standing at the practice tee and giving instructions isn't so easy as it may appear. I gather that every golfer, no matter how poor a player he may be, has some theories of his own which he wishes to maintain. And only a diplomat may operate and remove these theories. And implant some of his own.

But even this teaching is not more important than the care of the golf course and the construction of the course so as to keep it interesting.

Howard Beckett, at the Capital City, for instance, is constantly experimenting with turf, top soil for the greens, and the location and contour of the greens, traps and so on. Just to mention some of the details. In the sheds where Beckett keeps his various soils, one finds "woods soil," which is simply soil that has lain for a long time in the woods and is filled with natural richness. With this must be mixed sand and other soils so as to produce a top soil which will not bake and harden.

One of Beckett's interesting experiments this year is with a curious soil known as "Florida Peat." It is a black soil. A handful of it taken up and squeezed shows the soil to have a unique resiliency, much as if one were squeezing a rubber ball.

In addition to this quality it has another and that is the retention of moisture for a longer period of time than the ordinary soil and sand. This will be mixed with the other soils on some of the Capital City greens in an effort to determine whether or not it will keep the greens moist and consequently softer without constant watering.

And various patches of turf, sent out by the U. S. G. A. greens committee and planted by the pros, are carefully tended, as are patches of their own turf experiments. Some of it usually finds its way into a green for the real test of sun, water, wear and constant cutting. Beckett's story is the story of any true club professional. Being a golf pro is not all beer and skittles or playing in exhibitions before cheering throngs. It isn't the half of it.

HEROIC MEASURES.

Those Crackers refuse to do anything except by heroic measures. The Wednesday game was a travesty, as the boys say, until the ninth was ended. And then the Crackers started in with their heroes. Rosenthal and Carlyle came through with home runs to match the Barons for such a long time that it appeared someone would have to shoot the two clubs before they starved to death.

Lennie Mock, at second, had a terrible day. He was getting those chances which make a man want to go out and commit hari-kari. They took bad hops, sudden twists and all contributed to making Mock look bad. And then when one came that was within reach he was so tight he couldn't hold it. The ball bounded from his rigid fingers. It was a great illustration of what coaches mean when they ask players not to "press" or try too hard.

The Crackers did not look like a ball club. They seemed to go all to pieces. And yet they staged one of their ninth-inning rallies to tie and stick in the game. Once Barron gets some parts that will fit he and his club should chug right along.

RUNS BATTED IN.

Simon Rosenthal, with 16; Johnny Chapman, with 11, and Roy Carlyle, with 10, have batted in 37 of the 69 Cracker runs which bat power has scored. That's just in case anyone desired an illustration of the value of base hits.

CHICK MUST HAVE ENJOYED IT.

Chick Hefey must have chuckled all the way home last night after the Reds had beaten the Cardinals. The Cardinals got rid of Hefey. And now if the Reds will only murder Brooklyn, Babe Herman can enjoy the summer.

FANS 33.

Joe Escobar, 16-year-old pitcher of the Stockton, Cal., American Legion junior baseball team fanned 33 batters in a 17-inning game.

ALL IN SHAPE.

Manager Bill Killefer of the Browns believes all his pitchers are in first shape this season for the first time in years.

'DOC' PROTHRO NOT SURPRISED BY CLUB'S RISE

"I Just Laughed When
Experts Low-Rated
Memphis," Pilot Says.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 27.—(AP)—Memphis' rise to leadership in the Southern association has surprised practically everybody but James Thompson Prothro.

Extracting Chattanooga from undisputed domination over first place this week was as painless to "Doc" Prothro as was tooth pulling in west Tennessee a few years ago. The re-asserting of the patients then and now, Doc says, will have to be obtained from other sources.

"I just laughed when the experts put Memphis in the second division," Doc said today.

"Surprising showing?"

"Not surprising at all," Doc flashed back. "I knew before the season opened I had a good ball club."

Winning games with a flock of new men, and a handful of sick boys on his hands hasn't been easy. As a matter of fact, Doc has to jump in and play third base quite often. He would play more, he explained, but is beginning to tell and he was ill for a time this winter.

"We have played but one game this season with what might be called our regular lineup," Doc says. "Two reserves, Herschel Bobo, playing shortstop, and Fern Bell, in center, have been factors in our victories."

"George Welling, shortstop secured from Portland, had to be taken out because of a sore arm. Peck Hamel, regular centerfielder, has been able to get in but two games, and has been used as a pinch hitter once. Frank Brazill, now a third baseman, has a weak arm and a lame leg."

MAY TO RETURN.
Topping this, Pitcher Kit May made an unannounced departure while the Crackers were in Nashville. Later, he informed the management of the arrival of a new baby at his house. His return to the Tribe will make the team even more formidable.

Doc figures on finishing high up in the first division, in which choice company the Crackers associated the past four years under his handling. They won the pennant in 1930 and second half of the split season in 1928.

Have the Crackers a "hoodoo" over Chattanooga?

"Hoodoo nothing," Prothro comes back. "We've got a ball club. Hutchison, Berger, Brazill, Fenton, Bell and Reese are all batting way above .300."

"I just treat the players like I would want to be treated," says Prothro.

MRS. O. S. HILL SEEKS TITLES

KANSAS CITY, April 27.—(AP)—The ever-ambitious Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, hopes to try for the English, French and German women's golf titles in 1932.

She will make a bid for the American championship at Salem, Mass.

Preparing for her departure which will see her on her way to England, she will meet Britain's best female golfer at Wentworth, England, starting May 21. Mrs. Hill wondered today whether her travels could be arranged to permit competition on the continent.

She probably will have a fling at the British title in the English women's tournament, May 26-June 2, just after the international matches.

The vigorous Kansas City woman, who took up golf on a doctor's advice after she had turned 30, believes she has her best golf year just ahead.

This apparently well-founded belief is based upon her showing in four tournaments during a swing through the south. Mrs. Hill brought home four medal prizes and three championship trophies to add to hundreds of others she was stashed away during her enthusiastic and successful search for health.

She would have scored a grand slam but for the fact that Maureen O'Leary, an international teammate, sank 30-foot putts on the last two sand greens at Pinehurst to win the north and south title.

Looking younger than ever and bronzed from her links touring in the south and in practice rounds over her home-town courses, Mrs. Hill relates a humorous incident of powder-puff golf.

It happened at one of the southern tournaments. A naive young thing approached her and wonderingly purred: "Why, Mrs. Hill, I think it's just wonderful that you ever touched a golf club until you were 45 and still became such a wonderful player."

The country's tennis queen was to sail at midnight on the Aquitania. Her first appearance abroad will be in the French hard courts championships May 22. She also will play in the Wightman cup matches and in the Wimbledon tournament.

Miracles in Sports

AMERICA PLAYS CANADA TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Opening of the United States-Canada Davis cup play tomorrow is expected to show whether Ellsworth Vines has regained the form which made him the international amateur tennis champion last year.

Vines meets Dr. Jack Wright, a capable, experienced player, but hardly a match for the American if the latter's name is in the top. The Californian, however, has been beaten twice this spring by Wilmer Allison, of Texas.

Last week, however, in the finals of the season, with five home runs already to his credit, Ruth is away to one of his best starts, despite a slight touch of "flu."

The year he set his major league record of 60 home runs, 1927, he did not collect the fifth until May 1. In fact, he has never before had more than four homers to show for his April efforts.

Babe Quits Golf For Serious Work Of Hitting Homers

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Babe Ruth has given up his alternate love-golf—in order to conserve his energies for the business of helping to wallpaper the New York Yankees to the top of the American league.

"I found out last year I couldn't combine the two games and he at my best," he said today.

"Maybe I'm getting a little old—but these ball games are tough enough on the legs."

BABE RUTH. The Babe, meanwhile, sees no reason for changing his prediction on the order of the American league finish—New York, Washington, Philadelphia.

"I'm not so surprised to see the Athletics slipping the lead," he said. "I expected them to. Washington will be our toughest opposition but the Yankees should win in a walk."

"Our pitching will get better with warmer weather. Right now, the way we are hitting, we don't have to worry much about the pitching."

Hitting 394 for the first two weeks of the season, with five home runs already to his credit, Ruth is away to one of his best starts, despite a slight touch of "flu."

The year he set his major league record of 60 home runs, 1927, he did not collect the fifth until May 1. In fact, he has never before had more than four homers to show for his April efforts.

U. S. GOLF STARS TO STAY HOME

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Many of America's golf stars will pass up European competition this year, but the tennis players, masculine and feminine, are prepared for another major drive on foreign titles.

American tennis will be represented abroad by at least 10 ranking players, but golf, although it will contribute as many, falls far short of its usual invading strength.

Only Tommy Armour, the defending champion; MacDonald Smith and Gene Sarazen, who came from England to play in the British open starting at Sandwich June 6, and, at this time, it seems Dave Martin, California champion, will be in the American competitor in the British amateur at Muirfield May 23-28.

There are a number of factors contributing to the more male golfers to play abroad—the economic situation, the fact that this is an off-year in Ryder cup competition and that the Walker cup matches will be played in this country.

As annual entrants in the British open, Armour and Mac Smith, Scots both, are exceptions to the general rule. Sarazen thinks the long Sandhills of the Davis cup team in which course made to order for his hard-hitting game.

It is in the field of women's competition that golf will make its best showing. A team of six, including Helen Hicks, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, Maureen Orcutt, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Virginia Van Wie and Mrs. Leona Pressler Cheney, will meet at Muirfield May 23-28.

The year he set his major league record of 60 home runs, 1927, he did not collect the fifth until May 1. In fact, he has never before had more than four homers to show for his April efforts.

Atlanta and Nashville Awarded Fan Trophies

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 27.—(AP)—Trophies for the largest paid adult attendance on opening days were won by Nashville and Atlanta, John D. Martin, president of the Southern league, announced tonight.

Nashville drew the largest attendance in the circuit and won in the competition with Chattanooga, Knoxville and Little Rock. Atlanta won in the other division in competition with Birmingham, New Orleans and Memphis.

"Chattanooga drew the second largest attendance in the league, but inasmuch as, under the terms of the cup award, Chattanooga was in a different group from Atlanta in the competition, no cup award can be made to Chattanooga. But honorable mention is deserved," Mr. Martin said.

Total attendance for the entire circuit on opening days was 69,820. Opening day adult attendance in the league was as follows:

Nashville 15,296 New Orleans 6,572
Chattanooga 12,730 Memphis 6,536
Atlanta 12,027 Knoxville 4,987
Birmingham 7,068 Little Rock 4,634

EISEMANN HITS DOUBLE TO WIN SECOND, 15 TO 14

Rosenthal Ties Score in 14th With Home Run.

By Jimmy Jones.

A 15-inning saga as arduous and futile as Ulysses' return from Troy was the lot of the Atlanta Crackers yesterday and even though they battled the Birmingham Barons tooth and claw over the longest route any two Southern league clubs have traveled in many a moon, they eventually saw the game go by the boards when "Love's Labor Lost" and the "Comedy of Errors" could not adequately describe it.

The Crackers fought bitterly to come out on top. Inning after inning passed with the Barons forging a run ahead, only to have one of Red Barron's boys deliver a desperate, last-chance blow in the home half to deadlock things.

SIMON ROSENTHAL. Simon Rosenthal, that iron-nerve and steel-wristed slugger, made a final courageous bid for the Crackers in their half of the fourteenth when he drove one of Jim Edwards' southpaw pitches over the right field fence—nearly the spot where he placed that homer on opening day—to demolish a Barons-run lead and tie the score at 14-14.

The same thing had been done by Roy Carlyle in the tenth when he nailed the ball with dangerous proximity of a laundry sign that flaunted an offer of $100 to the batter hitting it. Then the see-saw affair continued into the fourteenth, Billy Bancroft doubled to left and came on in when Scarpay Moore's intended sacrifice went wild on a play, Chapman to Rosenthal.

St. Rosenthal had made three hits for the Crackers—a single and two doubles, when he sauntered to bat in the fourteenth. One could hardly have asked him to perform any more stupendous feat, after what he has done this year. But he was equal to the call of supreme individual effort and he led off with his well-clubbed homer, deciding the game.

Birmingham got the coveted run in the fifteenth as the shadows began to fall and the best efforts of the Crackers failed to undo it in their last chance.

MANY CHANCES. There were so many chances for both teams to win the game that a mere slip of the foot could not be held against either side.

The Crackers gave Bunny Hearn a bounteous lead at the very outset when they drove in five runs in the first, but they were overcome by Birmingham, which came when Bancroft singled, took second when Moore fouled suit, and scored while Bobby Goff was completing a double play.

But Hearn, who apparently is not at his best, failed to hold his margin and Barron had to send in Wilbur Wade, stocky right-hander, with one down on the fourth inning.

Until the ninth when Carriers relieved him, Barron sent in a pinch hitter in that inning and Maurice Brown, that patient lefty, was in and pitched and won his game Tuesday.

He came back to the mound and finished out the remaining six innings.

Famous "Two Hearts" Shows Here Tonight

Something new for Atlanta lovers of music and the screen is offered tonight at the Atlanta Woman's Club. It is the world-famous German operetta film, "Two Hearts in Waltz Time," which ran for more than a year in New York and enjoyed similar success in the leading cities not only of America and Germany, but of France, Britain and other countries. The picture was directed by Germany's greatest director, Geza Von Bolvary. Its popularity chiefly rests upon the delightful musical score, composed by Robert Stolz, famous for his waltz tunes and dances. It contains many lovely musical numbers, chief of them all being the song of the same title as the picture, "Two Hearts in Waltz Time." Or, if you prefer the original German, "Zwei Herzen in Dreiviertel Takt."

The picture is offered here by Esplanade Enterprises. It is to be shown on Thursday and Friday nights and there will be a student's matinee on Friday afternoon. The Woman's Club audience is being specially equipped with Radio Corporation of America sound equipment by the National Theater Supply Company for the presentation.

The story of "Two Hearts" is quite easily followed even by those who know no German, though the dialog and lyrics are all in that language. There are a number of subtitles in English in order to make it easy to follow the plot. This has to do with the troubles of a Viennese composer and his librettists in seeking the proper "hit" tune to make their new operetta a success. There is a very lovely lady and her equally lovely affections involved in the plot. It is one of those pictures that will always be remembered as among the finest of productions and one that Atlanta is fortunate in being able to see, along with the other big cities of the country.

Fairbanks Jr. Portrays Furor-Sated Public Idol

Proving that fame is oftentimes vinegar to the modest hero's palate, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in "It's Tough to Be Famous," current feature at Georgia Theatre, portrays a young naval officer who accidentally becomes the hero in a submarine disaster, and then is victimized by scheming promoters who plot to cash in on his power over the hero-worshipping public.

Immediately following the catastrophe he is raised three ranks, and is whisked to Broadway to undergo ballroom by a professional manager, who makes it his business to see that Fairbanks remains in the eye of the sentiment-loving public by having his privacy flaunted on the front pages of tabloids. One of his exploiters, the head of a grotesque corporation, gives him a high position for the ulterior motive of advertising its products.

Ultimately Fairbanks, after repeated threats, does rebel from the exploitation, in time to save his marriage, which is being wrecked by the ravages of fame, but not until he, too, is wealthy. Mary Brian plays the role of wife to the suffering hero. Betty Hopson and Ruth Ewing are entertaining in shorts—I am referring to pictures.

"Amateur Daddy"
Somewhat Hackneyed
"Amateur Daddy," opening a three-day run at Loew's Grand theater this morning, is one of those pictures involving a handsome hero who has to learn that the little girl, to whom he is acting as guardian, has grown to be a young womanhood before there is any chance for the "love me forever and happy ever after" ending.

This time the hero is Warner Baxter, who takes under his wing a family of poverty-stricken orphans, with Marian Nixon as the ragged little "oldest girl." There is plenty of feminine competition for Warner's affections, but of course, at the end, he sees the inevitable light and decides that Marian is the girl for him. Not that he is to be blamed.

There is some good work in this picture, notably by the younger players and the dog and mule. There is sufficient story to make it interesting throughout.

Newsreels, an organ and other short subjects complete the bill.

being checked by Scotland Yard and continental police authorities.

There was a burst of activity during the day at the Curtis boat building plant. In addition to conferring with Admiral Burrage for a second time during the afternoon, Mr. Curtis was visited by Captain Lackmann. Later a ship chandler's truck carrying a supply of groceries came to the place and transferred its load to an automobile. It was reported the groceries were then carried to the Marcon, docked near the naval base.

Mr. Curtis finally left his office by an unwatched entrance and eluded reporters by dodging through wood stacks in a near-by coal and wood yard. The Virginian Pilot said today it learned that Mr. Curtis conferred by telephone with Colonel Lindbergh one or more times during the day.

HONOLULU JURY GETS MASSIE CASE

you he was as sane as any of you jurors.

"Sympathy Appeal." Charge.
"Clarence Darrow, a great attorney, appealed in his final argument for sympathy. You must not listen to him. You must put sympathy behind you."

"Hawaii, itself, is on trial. You must determine whether there is one law for us and another for others. Can others take the law into their own hands?"

As he finished, Kelley said: "Are you going to give Massie a ticket of leave so he can blithely kiss Hawaii goodbye? Why, they'll make him an admiral if you do. They'll put him on the chief of staff. Admiral Pratt and Massie think together. They believe in lynch law."

"I'd like you to remember this, though. As long as the American flag flies above the courthouse and not an admiral's pennant, you have to uphold the oath. You have a most vital task and there is no admiral to influence you. And as General Butler said, 'To hell with admirals!'"

Darrow, pleading for "human pity above the law," claimed Lieutenant Massie was insane when he shot Kahahawai and that the other defendants were implicated only by being present when Massie sought a confession from Kahahawai.

Judge Davis pointed out that the "not guilty by reason of insanity" verdict could apply only to Massie, since he was the only one that entered such a plea.

"You are instructed," Judge Davis read, "that, regardless of whether you find Massie was insane when the shot was fired, to find him not guilty on that plea you must feel certain there was no intent to commit the shooting before he became insane."

The defense noted numerous exceptions to his instructions. "As the jury retired to its deliberations the defendants were taken to a downtown hotel."

An emotional plea, as dramatic as any he ever made in his 50 years as "counsel for defense," came from rugged Clarence Darrow as he fought to save the four defendants from serving prison terms.

There were few dry eyes in the courtroom as the 75-year-old Chicago attorney alternately pleaded, raged and challenged for those accused.

Before a jury of whites, orientals and natives, the 75-year-old Chicago attorney made an emotional appeal that the defendants be acquitted of slaying to avenge assaults upon Mrs. Massie, attractive young wife of a naval officer.

The defendants, Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, husband of Mrs. Massie; Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, her mother; and A. O. Jones and E. J. Lord, seamen, looked on spell-bound as Darrow fought to save them from possible terms of 20 years to life in prison.

Present in the courtroom to hear Darrow make his final argument was Mrs. Massie. Her only previous appearance at the trial was when she told dramatically of the assaults Kahahawai and four other islanders assertedly made upon her when she wandered unaccompanied from a party the night of September 12, 1931.

These assaults placed such a mental strain upon Lieutenant Massie that the young naval officer's mind suddenly went blank when he heard Kahahawai confess he led the gang assault, the defense claimed.

He was completely insane, the defense claimed, when a bullet from a service revolver he held snuffed out the life of the half-caste.

Mrs. Massie wore a black dress, which accentuated her paleness. She removed her hat to reveal her blonde hair, dressed much in the manner of that of the film star, Greta Garbo. She sat beside her husband, who held her hand occasionally to help steady her.

Courtroom Jammed.
The courtroom was jammed with spectators of almost every race and mixture.

Outside the skies were blue and a torrid sun beat down. The atmosphere seemed stifling.

Darrow was wearing a new grey suit. It was carefully pressed in contrast to his usual style.

Before Darrow's argument started, Judge Charles S. Davis called the attorneys for a conference. It was reported counsel were wrangling over what Judge Davis intended to include in the instructions to the jury.

The courtroom grew hotter and paler as fans came out. Darrow started slowly, his voice barely audible.

"We are getting near the end of this trial," he said. "I know we are all glad, and I feel you jurors probably are most joyous."

History of Case.
"I want to review just a bit of the history of this case. Eight months ago Mrs. Fortescue lived in Washington. She was respected and known. Eight months ago Lieutenant Massie was a youthful naval lieutenant. He was respected among his friends, and intelligent. Eight months ago his young wife, Mrs. Massie, was a handsome, attractive, intelligent woman. All three were known and respected in the entire community."

"What has befallen them in this short eight months? What has happened that they now are in criminal court with a jury which has been asked to send them to prison for life?"

"I'll answer those questions," Darrow said, speaking louder, "a long series of events over which they had no control."

"I want to call your attention to Massie's mind," the 75-year-old barrister said. "What does anyone know of the mind and its devious workings?"

As Darrow talked his shaggy, unruly hair fell over his eyes and he brushed it aside with an impatient gesture. He mopped frequently at the perspiration on his brow.

"Eight months ago Lieutenant Massie took his young, attractive wife to a dance. He was grave, ambitious, fearless."

Say Mind Affected.
"We contend," Darrow's voice became a thunder, "that Massie's mind was affected by grief and sorrow and trouble. It followed the events of that night of the dance. Week after week after week he found grief and sorrow and trouble."

"There is nothing strange about what happened to Lieutenant Massie's mind. It would have happened to you and to me under similar conditions."

Darrow placed his long hands on the jury box rail as he went on to recite events at Alawai Inn where was held the party from which Mrs. Massie strayed to be assaulted.

"It was only a few steps from safety to destruction of body and mind," Darrow went on. "Thalia went for a walk. What was the next thing Lieutenant Massie heard from her?"

"Just as the prosecution in this case has said, the next thing Massie heard from his wife was 'horrible!'"

Tears came to Mrs. Massie's eyes. Darrow turned swiftly to the story of the assaults upon Mrs. Massie. He hammered the rail as he recounted Mrs. Massie's story of how Kahahawai and the others assaulted and beat her although she prayed for mercy.

Mrs. Massie began to sob openly now and her husband attempted to comfort her.

"In those assaults," Darrow went on, pointing his long lean finger at the jury, "her whole life and whole family life was ruined."

Darrow folded his arms across his chest and shook his great head as he said: "I don't know where I have heard a sadder or a crueler story."

Darrow now was calling Mrs. Massie by her first name and Lieutenant Massie by his.

"When Thalia told Tommy the story of those gang assaults wasn't that enough to turn any man's mind?" he stormed. "Wouldn't it unsettle your mind to have your wife tell you such a story?"

Darrow was pounding the counsel table now.

"But it wasn't only a story of assaults that this man had to listen to. Those hoodlums had broken her jaw. They had knocked out her teeth. They cursed and beat her when she pleaded for mercy. Just think, Tommy had to listen to a recital like that."

"Story Not Denied."
"And I want you jurors to remember," Darrow said solemnly, "that the prosecution brought forth not one single fact to deny her sad story nor to deny Kahahawai was one of the assaulters."

Dr. Robert Faus, city and county physician, sat in a front row seat. He was there at the request of Darrow. The attorney said he wanted the physician as a precautionary measure.

"My strength is not what it once was," he explained before court opened.

In the middle of his argument Darrow turned his head suddenly to attack Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco alienist, who testified for the territory and said he believed Massie sane at the time Kahahawai was shot.

Dr. Catton's testimony, given positively and in what Darrow considered a prejudiced way, aroused Darrow at the time and the attorney shook with anger as he recalled it today.

An island court, probably never heard such a bitter scorching as Darrow gave the alienist.

"Catton," he said, as he pounded his table, "sits at his door like a spider waiting for flies. He takes the first one that comes. He would just as soon swear to destroy a man's life as to save it."

"With Dr. Catton," Darrow continued in his fury, "it merely depends on who gets to his door first."

Having disposed of Catton in this manner, Darrow turned again to events preceding Kahahawai's death.

He told how the jury was hung when Kahahawai and four other islanders were tried on charges of assaulting Mrs. Massie.

"Then a whispering campaign started," he continued. "It achieved proportions such as few ever waged against man or woman."

"Strange, slanderous stories spread over this Paradise island, stories that Kahahawai never had been assaulted, stories that her husband broke her jaw."

"I wonder what fate can have against this family," he said slowly. "I wonder when fate will take its toll and allow us to go in peace."

Wired Mrs. Fortescue.
"What about the mother in the case. They wired Mrs. Fortescue asking her to come. She came. There are many eulogies about mothers, some of them are worthwhile but there is something more primitive I'll discuss."

"It isn't a question of the greatness of a mother but what nature has done. There is only one thing to a mother and that is the child she has borne."

Mrs. Fortescue started weeping. She held her handkerchief to her eyes.

Darrow was flailing the air with his long arms as he thundered up and down the courtroom.

"I tell you, he said, swinging to face the jury, 'that she acted as every other mother acts. She felt as your mother felt. She started out on a long trip. Her daughter was married and a long way off. That didn't matter. If it was any other way there wouldn't be life on this planet.'

"She traveled 5,000 miles by land and sea to be with her daughter."

"Do you gentlemen want to send her to the penitentiary?" He paused. "If you do go to it. There she sits in this courtroom."

"Let me say this, if the husband, mother and these faithful boys (Jones and Lord) gave prison it won't be the first prison sanctified by a miscarriage of justice. And, when people come to this beautiful island, no matter when, one of the first places they will wish to see, will be the prison where these people are confined because of their love and devotion."

"The prison will be the most conspicuous place on the island."

"Men will marvel at the injustice and cruelty of man in this, the cruellest of all islands."

est persecution and sorrow that ever has followed a family.

"You, and you and you," Darrow shouted, singling out the jurors, "if you were caught in the hands of fate, would things be different?"

"Life doesn't come that way. It comes through the devotion of husband and mother."

"That's where life comes from."

Darrow concluded his address with an appeal for the jury to put aside race prejudice in deciding this decidedly racial trial.

"I never knew the meaning of a feeling against any race," he said. "I defy anyone to show that I did. I think the people of the Pacific islands must learn to live in peace. Otherwise the Pacific will run red with the blood of man."

"I have no feeling against those that assaulted Mrs. Massie because of their race. I am a Caucasian, but that means nothing. The jails are full of Caucasians with whom we can live. It is full of them even in Chicago."

"I put this case above race and nationality. I ask everyone in this jury box to forget everything but the human angle. Please consider the terrible mishaps of this family and understand them."

Darrow was in tears as he closed this final address. His voice had lost all its fire. He looked like a tired old man.

"I would like to think, gentlemen of the jury, that I had done a small part in bringing peace and justice to these islands," he said.

He picked up his papers and walked to a seat. Mrs. Massie was weeping. Mrs. Fortescue shook hands with the veteran barrister.

MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL
NEAR END FOR JUDGE
Workman Assails Picture of Victim as Aggressor Before Slaying.

OPELOUSAS, La., April 27.—(P)—Whether Judge Gilbert L. DuPre, aged and deaf former legislator, or Charles Dejean, 38, Opelousas salesman, was the aggressor when DuPre last Thanksgiving Day shot and killed Dejean on the street here, became the issue of bitter contention tonight in DuPre's trial for manslaughter as the state drew its case to a close.

Dejean was shot as he and DuPre met on the street here after an argument in the local Elks Club during which Dejean chided DuPre on the legislator's reported switch from a bitter attitude toward the Huey P. Long gubernatorial administration to a supporter of Long's candidate for governor.

M. H. Hartly, worker on the post-office construction site near which DuPre shot Dejean, testified to the actual killing as an eye-witness.

He said when he first saw DuPre and Dejean the former was stepping backward with a pistol held in both hands pointed at Dejean. He said Dejean took two steps toward the judge and DuPre fired. He testified that Dejean gestured with his hands, swinging them away from his body, palms open.

Defense Attorney Austin Fontenot vigorously attacked Hartly's testimony.

Georgia Colonial Dames Open Two-Day Session in Athens

ATHENS, Ga., April 27.—Georgia Society of Colonial Dames of America held the opening session of its two-day convention in Athens today in Memorial hall. At this time reports of the various officers and committees were taken up. When delegates to the convention registered they were presented with little booklets called "Historic Athens," which were souvenirs presented by the hostess committee. These booklets, beautifully bound in blue with a sketch of the university arch done in gold on the cover, contain a sketch of the history of the city with numerous illustrations of points of interest in the town. A welcome from the University was extended by President S. V. Sanford, who said in part: "Now England has the honor of laying the pioneer foundation of public education at public expense. To Georgia falls the honor of laying the foundation for higher education at public expense. It is to this institution that I bid you welcome."

Today we are asking for the leadership of our ancestors—people who can feel the fundamental needs of the people without political and party prejudices. May the principals of this society be reincarnated in the youth of today and then perhaps we shall see a brighter day."

The first report, that of Mrs. Craig Barrow, of Savannah, president of the society, included the highlights of the work of the society for the past year—the collection of valuable slides on the history of Georgia, which have been shown all over the state during the year, a report on the Colonial Dames house in Savannah, the headquarters of the state society, and some mention of Dunstable house, the recently acquired national headquarters.

Reports of the other state officers were for the most part necessarily of a statistical or technical interest. In connection with the Colonial Dames house a number of valuable gifts and loans in the way of furniture, books, etc., were reported, and many improvements on the house and grounds. The final report was from the nominating committee, and it was accepted in full with no further nomination from the floor. LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Wrap It Up

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: The Star What Are

STATION L-O-V-E BY CRAIG CARROLL

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Judy Allison had been in Chicago six months with out finding work when Richard Mason, radio announcer at WABC, got her a job as a "Beauty Editor" program. Judy got the job, but the audition had not been conducted fairly. "You got away with it this time, but you'll wish you hadn't," she said to Judy. Judy spoke to Elton Day, continuity writer, who without her knowledge, had arranged for the audition to be conducted fairly. He answered her question and told her that Dick Mason might be blamed. Dick had told Judy to go to the station and wait for him. Judy was disappointed and told her father, who was a contractor for $100 a week. Judy was discussing her fears that Dick would lose his job with her friend Elton, when they heard that Dick and Billy Townsend, a radio operator, had been discharged. Before Dick and Billy left the city, presumably for Cleveland to look for jobs, Dick refused to see Judy. Of course you didn't know anything about it. Of course not," he had said in a friendly tone. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"He's nice. He'd be a fine husband, Elton." "A husband? Huh? I'm laughing! I'm dying I'm laughing! So hard! A husband? For me? Abhhhh!" Elton pushed the word away with a capable large hand. "Me, I'll be keeping nothing happened. The taxicab crawled as slowly as ever. And Judy was glad. Because it was 9 o'clock, no more. And she did not want to be at the station until the last possible moment, until just before time to go on the air. She did not want to leave Elton at the tall building where Elton worked. She did not want to be left alone, even for an hour and a half. Not yet. Not just yet. Still, she said nothing about this. She waved casually as Elton entered the building. She told the driver: "Just keep going. Anywhere."

"Huh?" He turned startled eyes. "I said 'Just keep going.' Down the drive, or up the drive. I don't care. I want to ride around a while." "Oh." The cab crawled down Michigan and suddenly it turned east toward the lake, toward the outer drive. Here were huge buildings, skeletons, some of them; buildings with signs heralding a world's fair Judy was sure she would never see; buildings where men worked hard, shouted loudly, turned their backs on the beautiful skyline. Judy, who loved that jagged, beautiful line of buildings along Michigan boulevard, turned her back now, staring at the lake, staring at nothing at all.

She might go to Elton. She might ask him, earnestly, simply, to help her. She might, but she could not. Before he said what she said yesterday she could have treated him coldly, as some one not important. But now. When a man tells you he is in love with you, when he asks you to marry him, he is no longer to be ignored or to be put away by your detached insolence. He has taken a weapon into his hands by throwing away his weapons.

She might go back to Elton, might tell him the truth. But what if he did? Judy wanted a voice, he was paying for a voice, he had given her a contract that still had 51 weeks to go, and he would still be Elton, not to her.

She might simply go home. But she could not do that. To get on a train now, to run away, would be to confess what she could not confess, to admit what was not true. For flight could only seem, to Dick Mason, like confession.

And what could she tell her mother and her father? How could she explain—having written about the contract, about the job that would last for a year—that after a few hours she had changed her mind, had given up? When they needed the money, her father and mother even if they didn't say so; when what she could send to her father in a year might mean peace and rest and security to him for the first time in his life?

No. As "nothing to be done" had been set to the rhythm of her steps that day when she left Dick Mason on the street, so "nothing to be done" was the tune of the taxicab motor now. And, riding block after block, mile after mile, north and still south along the Michigan beach, Judy found no other answer.

So that, finally, she told the driver suddenly, "Now, let's go back."

"Mr. Day can tell you," she said primly. "And I'm afraid I'll have to be going."

"No. Wait, Miss Allison," Jenkins said. "I want to get this straightened out right now. Your voice is too good to be spoiled by an announcer like that. Elton, I want Mason, the man I had before."

"Sorry," Elton said smoothly. "It's out of my hands. Mason worked for the station. Not for me. That was part of the production cost you pay. And the station decided to get rid of Mason."

"Why?" Elton was silent.

"Drinking, maybe?" Judy said quickly.

"Oh. Then what? Maybe he didn't."
